During the presentation meeting I learned important about the place that hosts the Erasmus course: Jaen and Spain. Social, political and economic aspects, geography, territory, customs and language. I didn't know that Spain included regions with different languages.

It was also interesting to understand the organization of the course and subdivision into groups has been useful to communicate with other colleagues, for me fundamental to stimulate learning English.

The lesson today is based on ICT tools to promote task-based, cooperative learning and assessment for learning. Many applications have been illustrated, explained and tested : Padlet, Prezi, Yumpu, Google Drive, Mega, Moodle, Kahoot and others. Some apps I use already.

I had some difficulty listening to the English explanation but with the help of group colleagues and being teacher in computer science I was able to understand this very important lesson.

During today's lesson are teaching other tools useful to editing image and video, download music and development presentations: Animoto, Educaplay, Edpuzzle and others. It was important the activity-lab, through the "learning by doing" methodology, I learned to use new applications and I communicated more with the group improving my English.

The lesson for the University was interesting for two reasons: I saw the Jaén University and how it is organized, furthermore, it was important to train about the smartboard use. I had already used the smartboard but I learned new useful functions for my teaching activity, new ideas to propose to my pupils.

Another interesting lesson about using cloud to keep and share didactic resources. Applications like drive and dropbox already knew them but I did not know that the well-known social networks offered this service.

In the morning, Collaborative learning: preparation of the final presentation. It was very important because it allowed me to put into practice what I learned at the course and to improve my English with the group work. The afternoon visit of wonderful Alhanbra, another moment of cultural growth.

Dissemination strategies e presentation of groups works. An important moment of comparison, a summary of what has been learned in the classroom but also a moment of greetings.

A final overview of my experience in this European training programme:

I will always remember this week spent together. Friendly colleagues, prepared teachers, perfect organization. An intense experience of study and comparison and guided tours for a professional and cultural growth. A beautiful time spending well together, in a beautiful town, in a beautiful region, in the our Europe.
